One thing to remember about Upwey Prince Tarik, although he is listed with 21 registered progeny (only four of them fillies), he had at least two documented unregistered ones: Upwey Princess, who won the Vermont 100-Mile Ride in 1939 and My Own, who was third in the Vermont 100-Mile Ride in 1945. During the decade following the 1929 stock market crash, it was common for New Englanders short of cash not to register all their foals. Upwey Princess, for example, was fully capable of being registered, as both of her full brothers were. Since she wasn't, her four foals by Upwey King Benn all had to add the X prefix to their registration numbers. Upwey Prince Tarik was known to have sired an abundance of unregistered foals, many of whom competed in local shows and endurance rides all over New England in the 1940s and 1950s. Unfortunately, their beauty and athleticism were lost to the breed.

Upwey Prince Tarik's registered offspring left descendents in Canada, Great Britain, and the United States. ■
